Political Intelligence

No announcement has yet been made from BUCHAREST where the ambassador to the USSR of Great Britain and the U. S., and the Soviet Deputy Commissar for Foreign Affairs, M. VYSHINSKI, are discussing with King MICHAEL and his advisers, a plan for broadening the structure of the present Roumanian Government. It is proposed that two members each of the bourgeois parties, the National Peasants and National Liberals should be included in the Cabinet. . . .

On 22 December Radio BUCHAREST announced that General Nicolai RADESCU, Prime Minister between December 1944 and March 1945 had been arrested for violation of fiscal regulations. Soon after his resignation RADESCU took refuge in the British Legation building in BUCHAREST claiming that his life was in danger. Subsequently he has been subject to frequent and violent press attacks in which he was accused of reaction, and has been under constant surveillance. . . .

This is all the pertinent information on subject in this document.
